

Martin's Famous Pastry Shoppe Installs Boon Edam Entrance at Chambersburg, PA Corporate Office

For the first time in nearly 30 years, all administrative departments and the 80 plus employees of Martin's Famous Pastry Shoppe, Inc. ("Martin's") are located in one building, a new corporate headquarters recently built adjacent to the current bakery on 1000 Potato Roll Lane. This recent expansion is the 8th time Martin's has expanded its facility.

"We liked the Boon Edam door because the company specializes in these type of doors, and it's a more secure entrance because our people have to badge in to enter.."

CASE STUDY

Challenge

With the addition of an administrative department to Martin's existing bakery, the need to provide a safe and secure workplace for all employees became necessary.

Solution

Installation of a security revolving door at the entrance to the building prevents tailgating incidents and ensures only authorized employees can enter the premises.

Benefits

- Essential funneling of all employees to one main, secured entrance
- Unmanned security door eliminates tailgating into the building
- Increased security allows for staff to know who is on the bakery floor at any given time
- High quality of Martin's bread products is reflected in the high quality entrance

The Phase 8 building project includes the following improvements:

- A new corporate office, approximately 43,000 square feet
- 145,000 square feet of warehouse space
- Air conditioning in the new warehouse and bakery
- Major site work creating new entrances and truck traffic flow on campus

An essential component of the newly-constructed building is the walking bridge that connects the corporate offices to the bakery. All employees will enter the bakery through the administration building using the new Boon Edam revolving door. This is a security and safety improvement, but it is also a cultural commitment that Martin's employees are working together to bake the best products and provide the best sales distribution support in a safe environment. The safety and security of the bakery premises is required by strict regulations that food production companies like Martin's must strictly adhere to.

The Martin's Facilities Department wanted the quality of its entrance to reflect the quality of the company and its excellent bread products. A Boon Edam Tourlock revolving door was chosen for the primary entrance to the building because it is secure using radio frequency identification and it has the all-important ability to reject tailgating attempts.

"Keeping food safety and general manufacturing processes in mind, we want to know who is on the bakery floor; security is part of the policy and we wanted to tighten that up even more," commented Wendy Cowan, Marketing Manager for Martin's. "We liked the Boon Edam door because the company specializes in these type of doors, and it's a more secure entrance because our people have to badge in to enter."

The new building opened in July and the entrance was installed at that time. HR did a training and orientation for employees on door operation. "The Boon Edam entrance addresses our concerns about tailgating, we're pleased. We wanted to make certain we don't have any problems," said Cowan.
